CONTROLLING CORPORATE CRIME

Guide for Using the Corporate Security Survey

This survey was designed to give the business owner/manager a tool to examine their corporation's vulnerability with various aspects of corporate security.

It is suggested the survey be distributed to a number of employees in a cross section of departments. The broader the distribution, the more definitive the findings will show.

Instruct the employees to independently complete the survey. It should be done in this manner to insure that other employees don't influence the choice being made by person completing the survey.

Collect the surveys and start to analyze the results. Simply write down the question numbers, and put a mark beside each number if someone has indicated that question is an area of concern.

After going through the batch of surveys, it is easy to see which areas that require security improvements.

Your next step is to decide the steps or measures that need to be implemented to make changes. This can be accomplished in a number of different methods.
